Dear Ms. Davis,

I am writing to express my enthusiasm for the Information Technology Intern position at Paralympics Australia. As a Computer Science and Commerce student at the University of Queensland, I am excited by the opportunity to contribute to an organization that makes such a meaningful impact on Australian athletes and the broader community.

Through my studies and project work, I have developed a foundation in programming and data concepts that I'm eager to apply in a professional setting. While I don't have specific Salesforce experience, I am enthusiastic about learning this platform and how it can be optimized to support your organization's needs. I am particularly excited about gaining hands-on experience with CRM systems, data migration, and creating reports and dashboards that provide meaningful insights.

My experience as a Python tutor has helped me develop strong communication skills and the ability to explain technical concepts clearly. I believe these skills would be valuable in documenting processes and providing user support across your organization. I'm comfortable working with Excel and have a genuine interest in data structures that I'm eager to develop further.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the possibility of discussing how my enthusiasm for learning, communication skills, and passion for purposeful work could contribute to your team.

Sincerely,

Cameron Badman
